

10 DOWNING STREET

LONDON SW1A 2AA

THE PRIME MINISTER

As a past recipient of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation Annual Award, it gives me great pleasure to send my best wishes on the occasion of the Foundation's Annual Dinner, and I warmly congratulate the worthy recipients of the 1988 Award, Alan Greenspan and Gilbert Grosvenor.

There is much which remains to be done before people throughout the world enjoy the rights we take for granted in our two nations. Religious believers, and the Churches who administer to them, are in the forefront of the struggle against injustice and repression in many countries of the world. We cannot afford to weaken in our endeavour - particularly in this year in which we celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

I wish your Foundation renewed success in its noble work.

Margaret Thatcher

October 1988